ABSTRACT

Based on a survey conducted by the American Association of Junior Colleges (AAJC), this directory provides information on 694 non-profit, public and private two-year colleges in the United States and its territories, including statistics on 1962-63 enrollments and personnel. Following material on the scope and compilation of the directory, general observations on the data are made. Next, the directory lists the colleges alphabetically by state, including the following information for each: location; chief administrative head; AAJC membership; state recognition or accrediting agency; co-educational or single-sex status; year organized as a junior college; type of control or affiliation; October 1962 enrollment of full- and part-time, male and female, freshman, sophomore, and unclassified students; October 1962, summer 1962, and October 1963 total enrollments; and full- and part-time instructional and administrative faculty in 1962-63. Following a list of changes in institutions since the previous year, statewide enrollment summaries are provided for all institutions and for public and independent private colleges. Next, tables show distribution of size of enrollment, independent and church-related colleges by type of control or affiliation, and accredited schools by state. Information on other members of the AAJC and junior college organizations is presented in the final sections. (AYC)

INTRODUCTION

The thirty-sixth annual Junior College Directory, published by the American Association of Junior Colleges, is produced in the interest of providing accurate and timely information on two-year colleges located in the United States and its dependencies. Information in the 1964 edition covers the period from June 1962 through May 1963, plus October 1963 data for total enrollments.

Facts and figures have been collected through a questionnaire survey of junior colleges. The publishers have relied heavily on the reporting institutions for accuracy of the information listed in the Directory. Various enrollments and other totals were computed by Univac Data Processing.

Current data on accreditation, control, type of institution, student enrollment, and administrative and instructional faculty are given for each junior college in the United States and its territories that responded to the survey and qualified for inclusion in the Directory. Summary tables provide information, by state, on (1) all junior colleges, (2) public junior colleges, and (3) private junior colleges. Additional tables show the distribution of size of enrollment in junior colleges, the number of independent and church-related junior colleges by type of affiliation or control, and the number of junior colleges accredited by regional associations in the different states.

An alphabetical listing of junior colleges is included as an aid to locating the various institutions by state. Membership in the Association not included in the main table is listed, as well as a roster of state, regional, and national junior college organizations and their principal officers.

More extensive and detailed information about junior colleges may be found in the Sixth Edition of American Junior Colleges (1963), edited by Edmund J. Gleazer, Jr., and published by the American Council on Education, 1785 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington 36, D.C.

SOME OBSERVATIONS

The data appearing in this 1964 edition of the Junior College Directory continue the trend that became noticeable in the late 1950's and early 1960's—that American junior colleges are continuing to increase both in number and in enrollments.

In an attempt to relate the Junior College Directory, which is published annually by the American Association of Junior Colleges, to the more comprehensive reference work, American Junior Colleges, published every four years by the American Council on Education, it was decided by the Association that the list of institutions included be developed from information submitted through December 15, 1963, by the six regional accrediting associations, state departments of education, state universities, and the Engineers' Council for Professional Development. This corresponds with the editorial policy followed in American Junior Colleges.

Sixty-three institutions listed in the 1963 Directory do not appear in this edition—16 because of change in status and 47 because of change in inclusion criteria. Fifty-seven institutions appear in this edition which did not appear in the 1963 edition, 20 of which began operations in 1963.

Enrollments reported as of October 1963 total 927,534—an increase of approximately 13 per cent over the 1962 total of 818,869. An attendant increase in junior college faculty is apparent. It should be noted that enrollment figures include only those students enrolled in courses for credit. Junior colleges also conduct many noncredit courses for those interested in cultural enrichment and personal satisfaction.

The largest state increase in numbers of institutions included occurred in the case of New York, where 16 institutions were added, four of them new colleges. The others met for the first time the eligibility requirements for the Directory.

Greatest enrollment increases were registered in New York, California, Florida, and Michigan. These states were increasingly active in the development of new colleges or the expansion of programs in existing institutions.

Over all, the figures contained in the following tables reflect continued growth in the junior college field in terms of development of new institutions, increased enrollments, and growth in numbers of personnel to operate two-year programs.
